Dear Parents of Challenger Students,

We hope that your child has been making good use of the review packets and materials that we have been providing.

I'm writing to inform you that, starting next week, we will begin offering online classes to deliver new content to our kindergarten–8th grade students. A cornerstone of our product is stimulating critical thinking through student and teacher interaction. While we cannot provide the same level of interaction due to the unique and ever-changing situation our communities face, we are eager to partner with you to present a partial, and best possible, solution as we continue this academic year. We've been altering schedules to focus on essential core subjects in each grade and plan to expand to additional subjects as conditions permit. You will receive additional information in the coming days.

We will also continue to provide at-home learning activities and materials for our preschool and kindergarten prep students.

Additionally, many of you have inquired about the status of our teachers and staff during this mandatory school closure period. We appreciate your concern as it demonstrates how much you care for and value our teachers and staff. Because we, too, recognize the indispensable importance of our employees, Challenger will continue to compensate all of our employees at regular pay throughout the remainder of the school year.

This investment will help ensure that we have the crucial element—our employees—in place when we once again are able to open our classrooms for learning.

Thank you so much for your continued support and patience.

Sincerely,

Hugh Gourgeon
CEO
